

ABSTRACT

A method for displaying data representative of a video stream by providing frames containing progressively-encoded frame data. These frames represent a portion of the video stream. A selected extent of the frame data contained in each frame is fetched, and a video stream corresponding to the selected extents is displayed.